The CBA said Euro Gaming had only been allowed to take part in what is known as the minor event - the event which receives the minor quota of funding - because it did not have a major licence. Euro Gaming's application to the CBA was rejected after a hearing that lasted less than three minutes. The CBA deemed it to be a "suspended" company, and required the Euro Gaming chief executive, David Kinsman, to submit a security registration. The security registration was provided last week, after a Supreme Court ruling in Victoria that the organisers were not obliged to provide a registered security guard to guard the Queenscliff and surrounding areas. The Commonwealth Bank and Mr Lappin were ordered to pay $440,000 in costs. It is understood Euro Gaming lodged an application to appeal the decision, but because it has not provided any evidence to suggest they can claim back the $440,000 in costs, the appeal will not go ahead. The CBA today confirmed Euro Gaming was not invited back to take part in what will be the major event. An internal email seen by Fairfax Media shows
