Reclutar totalmente ilegal pero seriamente 5.9 millones de mujeres en las calles paga por nada? CON DEMONIOS DIGITALES!!! NewsHouse Democrats on Friday relaunched their push for a constitutional amendment to overturn Citizens United, saying it's time for the government to weigh in on political donations. The Judiciary Committee announced they will hold a hearing next Wednesday to discuss the constitutional amendment and a draft of one of the measures, but they are taking steps to ensure that the proposal will not be derailed by the committee's Republicans. The legislation is among the key priorities for House Democrats, who have held a series of hearings on the subject since the Supreme Court handed down its ruling in January that found constitutional limits on corporate spending on elections to be unconstitutional. ADVERTISEMENT Democrats say the ruling created a gap in campaign finance law that allows wealthy individuals and corporations to give unlimited sums to outside groups that advocate for or against political candidates. Democrats say this creates a corrupting influence on the electoral process and undermine the integrity of the political system, whereas Republicans say the court put Congress in charge and that it would be up to lawmakers to decide how to fill any void that presents. The committee gave committee approval earlier this week to the draft legislation, in which Democrats laid out six mechanisms for regulating political spending through a constitutional amendment, including public funding of campaigns and limited spending by labor unions. Republicans say the effort is unconstitutional and will never receive the two-thirds support in both chambers that it needs to be successful. The committee also voted to have Sens. Rep. John Conyers (D-Mich.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee, says Democrats have always intended to have the debate be chaired by the Senate, and he still expects Franken and Schumer to chair the debate. "I think they are going to do it,💎
