One of the best resources for learning to use Photoshop is _Drawing in Photoshop CS5 For Dummies_ by Jenny Campbell (published by Wiley Publishing, Inc.). This book begins with the basics of using Photoshop to create a photo in the RAW mode. For more information on this, see Chapter 1. ## Photographing in Capture Mode Although Photoshop's workflow revolves around layers and masking, this mode is simply a way to import an image file and display it. The resulting file is saved as a.psd file and is not altered further. Photoshop is able to read a variety of file formats, including RAW format. ## Using the Layers Window The Layers window has several purposes, including Organizing your work: You can rearrange layers by dragging and dropping them in the Layers window. To delete a layer, drag it to the Trash. Creating new layers: You can create a new layer by choosing the New Layer icon in the Layers window or by clicking the New Layer icon (the plus sign) at the bottom of the Layers window. Adding, deleting, and modifying existing layers: Click a layer in the Layers window and then use the tools that appear on the Layers panel as needed. Setting and adjusting their visibility: You can set a layer's visibility to visible or hidden. To do so, click the visibility icon that appears next to the layer in the Layers window (refer to Figure 2-1), and choose either the Visible or Hidden icon. Figure 2-1: Layers have their own window, shown here. The Visibility/Colors pane appears on the right of the Layers window. ## Formatting Photoshop offers a variety of standard formats to support all your image editing needs. You can create this file format from the Photoshop preferences, or from the File menu. Before you start editing, save the image in a format that looks the best for your image. Following are a few of the more common formats Photoshop offers: JPG: This is the most common format for the Web. It's ideal for publishing and is used for many web graphics. It is lossy (some details are lost during compression), so that you can save a lot of storage space. TIFF: This is a lossless format that preserves all the details in the image.

Local Police Arrested Suspect In The Southern California College Shooting Related Tags: Authorities have arrested a man who they say opened fire on the campus of the University of California, Santa Barbara early Friday morning, causing a massive police response that ended in the arrest of the suspect and the death of a person. The suspect, identified as William Aaron Finch, 24, was arrested on suspicion of murder, according to Santa Barbara County Sheriff's spokesman Drew Sugars. "Our chief concern is for the victims, their families and their friends," Santa Barbara County Sheriff Bill Brown said at a news conference early Friday. The shooting occurred around 11 a.m. local time when a gunman, armed with two handguns, opened fire on a student lounge at the campus, according to authorities. The lounge is located inside a building that is part of the campus of the University of California, Santa Barbara. The suspected shooter was chased by a campus employee and police who heard shots as they entered a building connected to the campus, according to the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department. "It is our belief that the employee entered the building and was shot," Brown said, adding the employee was pinned between Finch's bullets and a desk or chair. The employee is undergoing treatment for two gunshot wounds. "In this case, it is clear that, while an armed citizen was able to intervene and stop the shooter, there was another student that was able to intervene in some way." Brown said the gunman fired more than 100 rounds before he was arrested. Santa Barbara County Sheriff's deputies later found a body at a car, but it wasn't clear whether that was the intended victim or not. There were also rumors a second victim was found but that hasn't yet been confirmed. Brown said the motive for the shooting remains a mystery. Shortly before the shooting, Finch was pictured sitting in a chair and acting "fine," according to a witness. The suspect then stood up and took out his handguns. "It was a matter of seconds, he got up and we have a very well-armed, law-abiding person standing there who just fired over 100 rounds," Brown said. A police officer fired two shots, killing the suspect. "A suspect was taken down and he was shot and killed by another officer," he said. He added that the shooting happened within a "short window of time" and the University of California, Santa Barbara
