Hodiya Akuru was a language of India, related to Maithili and written in the Devanagari script. It was spoken between the 8th and 14th centuries CE. The first recorded instance of the name, however, is a Madurai inscription dating from the 2nd half of the 13th century. The most complete surviving text of the language was discovered in 2014. The grammar of the language is defined by a system of prefixes and suffixes. The text is preserved in five fragments found in Madurai, Chamarajanagar, and Udayapuram in the districts of Chittoor and Kanchipuram in Tamil Nadu State. The scholars believe that these words were a part of the text of a longer manuscript that was written in a much earlier period.
